DR. L. J. FRAZEE.

Dr. L. J. Frazee, a prominent physician, writer and educator of Louisville, died at 3:10 Saturday morning at his home in that city.

Dr. Frazee was born in Mason county 86 years ago.

He was a graduate from the Medical Department of the University of Louisville in 1837, and later became a member of the Faculty of his alma mater. He edited a medical paper for awhile and was the author of "A Medical Student in Europe."

Dr. Frazee is survived by two sons, L. J. Frazee, Jr., and G. B. Frazee, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary F. Howe.

He had a wide relationship in this county. The funeral occurred at 4 o'clock last afternoon, with interment in Cave Hill Cemetery.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

JUST now New Orleans needs another BEN BUTLER.

THERE likely isn't as much danger of a rupture at Portsmouth, N. H., as there is of one in Manchuria.

It surely oughtn't require much of an "expert" to elucidate the claims presented by the Japanese Peace Plenipotentiaries.

Russia's Peace Envoy, Colonel M. WITTE, smokes stinkarettes. This do settle it: in fact, it's almost enough to settle anything.

It makes a great difference from what standpoint a case is considered. The Japanese think their claims are very moderate, while the Russians hold them as the very reverse.

THE Commercial Tribune says The St. Petersburg Slav looks on the Portsmouth conference as a farce and The Novoe Vremya inclines to think it has many features of a comedy. In the Russian eye and view the expressions of the two journals may be popular, but there is danger of the farce or comedy shifting its scenes and showing a tragedy on the boards. It largely depends upon Japan, but more largely on Russia, for Japan not only holds the whip hand in military and naval successes, but—astonishing though it may seem—in the matter of available resources. The official year book of the Japanese Government for June, 1905, shows a condition of progress unexampled in modern days. With an annual revenue of $37,500,000 in 1885 she closed her fiscal year on June 30th, 1905, with a revenue of $157,098,788. It is true that in the same period her bonded indebtedness rose from $115,000,000 to $725,000,000, but even the larger figures are as nothing to the enormous indebtedness of Russia, more than $3,000,000,000, and unable to float a loan, while the bonds of Japan, issued for war purposes, are sought with the greatest eagerness at home and in foreign capitals, not excepting Berlin.

Dealing with the subjects of agriculture, schools, manufactures, commerce and the money market of the Empire, the annual shows an astonishing advance in each, while the thriftiness of the Japanese, their patriotism and their devotion to their country cause them to bear the necessarily increased burdens of war taxes without murmurs and with willingness. To the splendid conditions at home, financial and commercial, must be added the phenomenal successes of the Army and Navy of the new, but most strenuous, Nation, and her triumphs in the field of diplomacy are none the less marvelous. It is neither a farce nor a comedy that is on the boards at Portsmouth, but Russia's blind faith in the power of Russia may develop a tragedy, having its first act in Portsmouth, but its culmination in the Far East.

LOOKING BACKWARD!

The Disaster That Befell Maysville in 1854

Writing from personal recollections of the great event, The Ledger Man last year gave an outline of the Powder Magazine Explosion which well nigh wrecked this devoted city in the early Sunday morning of August 13th, 1854; and today he is permitted to reprint the local accounts of that happening, taken from a pamphlet kindly loaned by Mr. George L. Cox. Yesterday was the fifty-first anniversary of the disaster; and it will be of interest to trace the localities mentioned—and to learn that of the more than fifty individuals named, not a single one survives!

POWDER MAGAZINE FIRED

Terrible Explosion—800 Kegs Powder Burned—13 Houses Demolished—$100,000 Worth of Property Destroyed—Narrow Escape of Life—$1,000 Reward For the Perpetrators

Maysville Eagle Extra, August 14th, 1854.

On yesterday morning (Sunday, August 13th), at five minutes before 2 o'clock, our citizens were roused from their slumbers by the most tremendous and awful explosion ever heard in our midst,—caused by the firing of the Maysville Powder Magazine, containing 800 packages of blasting and rifle powder—and carrying desolation and destruction into every quarter of our city, of East Maysville and of Aberdeen, Ohio.

The light produced by the explosion was the most brilliant and the most intensely vivid imaginable, startling hundreds of our citizens from a sound sleep and awakening them to the sudden realization of the awful judgment Day. And then the explosion and the terrible concussion of the atmosphere that followed, confirmed many hardened sinners in the conviction that "Gabriel was blowing his horn" and that "the time had come for us all to go." Such was the language of some, and scarcely one of the six thousand dwellers in this immediate valley but was greatly agitated and alarmed. Many painful scenes were witnessed,—men of nerve losing their presence of mind, women screaming and children running about in terror—ignorant of the cause of their alarm, and fearful of the death of their households, of neighbors and friends all around, and of the destruction of all their property. Desolation and imminent danger was everywhere and in every house—and yet in the special providence of God, not a life was lost and few sustained any bodily injury. Some minutes elapsed before the citizens would venture into the streets—so dreadful and universal was the alarm created by the explosion and its incidents, the hursting in of doors, the crashing of windows and glass, the wreck of walls and other materials struck by the flying missiles, the feeling of suffocation produced by the close sulphurous atmosphere—almost instantly succeeding the flash of almost unearthly light, the explosion, louder and more deafening than a hundred thunderstorms, the tremendous heaving of the earth and jarring of houses scarcely less violent than the earthquake motions of Lisbon and New Madrid.

As the citizens sallied forth they found the sidewalks covered with stones and bricks from the foundations of the magazine, with bricks and fragments of wood from the chimneys and walls and roofs of the houses, with broken glass and sash and doors—and in many places the sills of the doors and windows, the tops of fences, &c., covered with powder or with the grit and sand and plaster scattered by the explosion. These last penetrated into many rooms, covering the bedding, mantels, tables, &c.

All realized at once that there had been a very serious destruction of property—but the great fear that animated all, was as to the killed and wounded. As many were hurrying to the scene of the explosion, they met a crowd carrying from his residence to the Lee House, the body of William P. Conwell, Esq.,—one of the ablest and soundest lawyers in Kentucky—who was bleeding profusely, and in the confusion supposed to be greatly mangled and almost lifeless. Such a scene, a distance of two squares from the magazine, appalled many—who even now, thirty hours after the calamity, can scarcely realize that in the providence of God not a single human being lost his life, and that with one exception no individual was dangerously hurt, and very few were wounded at all.

Mr. Conwell received prompt medical aid and the best attention. He was struck on the left leg, near the hip, by a stone thrown through his window shutter and window, and which inflicted a gash some two inches deep and three long, severing one or two blood-vessels, from which he lost much blood before its flow could be staunched. The violent bruising of the limb is more to be feared than the gash. Mr. C. also received a slight cut in the corner of his left eye. He is doing well, and it is believed will recover soon.

Mrs. Dr. Phister and Miss Belle Poyntz, at a distance of three squares, were struck with rocks, inflicting ugly cuts in the head of the one and on the foot of the other. Miss Helen Sentou had her right arm cut in several places by a window sash blown in upon her. Mr. Dempsey Carrell was badly bruised on the elbow and on the hip, by stones from the magazine. An old Negro woman was considerably injured by the falling of her roof, and the side of her house, in the hollow below the magazine. Another Negro woman, lying ill at the time, had her system so violently shocked by the explosion and so preyed upon by fear, that she died yesterday afternoon. A number of persons received slight scratches, most of them children, from falling timbers, plastering, &c.

The damage to property is immense—variously estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000. Every house develops damage of one sort or other not previously discovered—walls sprung, roofs giving way, cracks in walls, door frames crushed partly in, doors, shutters, sash and glass demolished, walls and roofs and partitions and flooring pierced as if by cannonading, furniture of all kinds, chinaware, &c., broken into fragments or greatly injured.

The following houses were entirely demolished or so damaged as almost to require rebuilding. John Smith's 4 frame dwellings and brick sausage-meat house; Joseph Frank's dwelling, occupied by Ben Logan; the lower City School-house, brick; the frame dwellings of John B. Gibson and J. A. Bierbower; the frame African Baptist Church; the brick dwellings of Father Spalding, James G. Spalding, Dr. Ambrose Seaton, Thomas Y. Payne, Alexander Maddox and Jacob W. Rand, together with Rand & Richeson's Maysville Seminary Building. The Presbyterian, Methodist, Methodist South, Baptist, Christian, African Baptist and African Methodist Churches were damaged from $200 to $1,000 each, and the Court-house probably $400.

The Mayor, in the name of the City Council and the citizens, has offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension and conviction of the scoundrels who fired the magazine. Hon. Judge Duval has ordered a special term of the Mason Criminal Court, for an investigation before the Grand Jury.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

Maysville Eagle, Tuesday, August 15th, 1854.

Those at a distance not acquainted with the localities about Maysville, will understand the reason why—although the damage is immense, so great that $50,000 cannot replace everything in the same good order the explosion found them—the destruction was not much greater, when we tell them that the powder magazine that was blown up, together with three other magazines, is situated in the narrow hollow or gorge along which the great Maysville and Lexington Turnpike ascends the hill back and South of the city, at a distance of less than a third of a mile from the Courthouse and the heart of the city. More than 4,000 persons were quietly slumbering, at the dead hour of 2 o'clock, within one mile of this powerful mine that was suddenly sprung upon them by the villany and heartlessness of a few men—dive, it is believed—and but for the elevation of the magazine a hundred feet over their heads, at least a thousand human beings must have been killed or horribly mangled and crippled for life. Indeed, as it is, many who are not wont to offer thanks have expressed great thankfulness for the wonderful and miraculous interposition of Providence in saving them and theirs from an awful death.

We learn from The Express of yesterday that the quantity of powder which blew up was considerably more than we stated in our Extra above—amounting in all, when the barrels were reduced to kegs, to an aggregate of 1,100 kegs or about 27,500 pounds. Theoretical gunners in the Navy can calculate approximately the force of the explosion, when they learn that the foundation of the magazine was of tolerably heavy limestone, and the walls of three brick or thirteen inches thickness, arched over with brick, and with a solid iron door. A stone weighing 102 pounds was found by J. P. Lawwell, where it was thrown by the explosion, in Aberdeen, entirely across the river and a mile from the place of its starting. Another stone weighing 43 pounds, struck a locust post of a grape arbor in James Helm's garden in Aberdeen, and completely shivering the post.

The steamer Huron, the Cincinnati packet lying at her landing-place at the lower grade, was pierced by a number of stones—of which one passed into the hull an inch above the edge of the water, one or more passed through the roof and cabin floor and then out into the river, and one passed entirely through the stateroom where the Clerk, Rolly Cooper, and his wife were sleeping, less than four inches from Mrs. Cooper's head. The rattling of the stones and bricks on the roof and side of the boat, on the grade, and all around in the river, was quite appalling.

We shall not attempt any systematic detail of damage done, and narrow escapes, but give at random such as occur to our mind:

The Parker House on Second street was struck by several large stones and numbers of small ones. One, weighing some fifty pounds, perforated the wall of the second story, and rebounding 15 feet, was broken into a dozen fragments. It forced a mass of brick and mortar over the room and especially over the bed of Mr. McKee, book-keeper at Pearce, Tolle & Co.'s, who was to have returned from the country with his wife that evening, and was providentially detained. Both would have been seriously hurt. Several of the boarders narrowly escaped injury by the blowing in of sash and broken glass upon them.

The residence of William H. Wadsworth, Esq., on Second street, near the cotton factory, was struck by six or eight stones, several very large. One of them pierced the shutter and window and shattered the bedstead on which reposed Mr. J. J. Corson and wife and infant, who had reached here only four hours previously from New Orleans. They received no injury.

The residence of Mrs. Ramsey, in the brick row, a few doors East of Mr. Wadsworth's, besides a number of smaller ones, was pierced by two stones, weighing about 40 and 70 pounds respectively. The smallest shivered to pieces the cradle from which she had removed her babe, and broke a part of the bedstead on which she was sleeping, while the largest lodged by her side in the bed, but so quietly that she did not discover it until daylight.

A dozen stones from 2 to 20 pounds each, penetrated the roof and windows of Mr. Dempsey Carrell, also in the brick row, doing much damage, and two of them bruising Mr. C. badly upon the elbow and hip. His family were saved from suffocation by his promptness in creating a ventilation through the house, which the concussion had failed to effect.

Just in this vicinity and in this direction was evidently the thickest discharge of stones, bricks and other missiles. On both sides of Second street, beginning at Short and coming up to the Parker House, every building with perhaps four exceptions is perforated either through the walls, roofs, windows or doors by stones, which did in some cases very serious and in others trifling damage. Several were perfectly riddled and have the appearance of being bombarded by cannon.

The following houses suffered most severely: Two frame dwellings now owned by Abram Carr, in the hollow, have only the front walls standing. The Negro woman mentioned in our Extra as among the wounded, was dug out of the ruins of one of these houses. Loss say $200.

The brick sausage-meat factory of John Smith was crushed in almost to the foundation. Loss about $100.

The double-frame dwelling, one of them occupied by John Smith, situated in the hollow on the "old road," were almost demolished. $300 will hardly repair them.

The brick "Scotch castle" of the venerable Father Daniel Spalding was damaged probably $200.

The next brick dwelling, of his son, James G. Spalding, had the front wall and part of the roof so damaged that they will have to be taken down. $200 will make it whole.

The brick dwelling of Dr. Ambrose Seaton, next on Fourth street or the "Pike," had the entire roof crushed in and was otherwise heavily damaged. Loss say $400.

The "Mayeville Seminary" Building was damaged probably $200.

The brick residence of Jacob W. Rand, adjoining the Seminary, had the roof badly injured, the walls sprung, the partitions moved, and was otherwise damaged. It will require at least $1,500 to repair it properly.

The brick residence of William Corwine's estate, occupied by Samuel L. Blaine, was damaged some $100.

The brick dwelling of Mrs. A. M. Cox, occupied by Thomas Y. Payne, Esq., had one end of the roof crushed, a partition moved, and two walls sprung. Loss and damage say $250.

On the opposite side of Fourth street, Jonathan A. Bierbower's residence, frame with brick wall, was pierced and battered by many stones—the former so much injured as scarcely to be worth repairing. Damage and loss $300. Much of the fine shrubbery, &c., in his beautiful garden was sadly injured.

The residence of John B. Gibson, frame and brick, had one side of the frame torn in and was otherwise damaged to say $100.

The large brick residence of Alexander

Maddox, in the square back of the Christian Church, was almost entirely ruined—will scarcely justify re-building. Loss and damage $1,000.

The brick residence of William B. Broadwell, on the pike, had some frames crushed in, and one wall gave way—rendering the house untenable for the present. Loss and damage say $100.

The frame residence of Joseph Frank, occupied by Ben Logan, colored, was almost demolished. Loss say $80.

The frame blacksmith shop of Ben Logan had the roof crushed in. Loss some $30.

These are the most serious losses to dwellings and buildings other than public. To these latter the damage was very heavy.

The African Baptist Church (frame) on the pike—the building owned by Father Spalding, and the furniture, &c., by the blacks—had one end torn to pieces, the pews thrown about, and was otherwise damaged to say $100.

The African Methodist Church, in the hollow, (frame) we have not seen—but learn from others that it is damaged $50.

The Christian or Reformed Church, on Third street, had a portion of the roof lifted from its place, the chandeliers, window-blinds, and sash all broken, the walls sprung, &c. Damage at least $300.

The Methodist E. Church, on Third street, had nearly all the sash and glass, and the fine chandeliers broken, and considerable other damage done. Loss at least $200.

The Presbyterian Church, on Third street, the finest in the state out of Lexington and Louisville, had nearly all the sash, inside shutters, &c., broken, and was much damaged otherwise. Loss say $500 several hundred dollars less than was at first supposed.

The Methodist Church, South, on Second street, was seriously damaged by the springing of walls, breaking of doors, fine chandeliers, sash, blinds, carpets spoiled, &c.—in amount not less than $600.

The German Methodist Church, on Third street, loss say $50 in sash and glass broken, &c.

The Episcopal and Roman Catholic Churches at the opposite end of the city from the magazine, received comparatively little damage, we believe.

The Episcopal and Methodist E. were the only Churches in which services were held on Sabbath morning.

The lower City Schoolhouse, built mainly by the legacy from John Armstrong's estate, was demolished above the first story. $500 will probably restore it.

The large and handsome Courthouse was damaged some $300 to doors, shutters, sash, &c. Fortunately the windows of the large hall were open, or the damage must have been much greater.

The City Hall, on Second street, received similar damage, besides the destruction of the elegant chandelier. Loss some $300.

Of the business houses, Michael Ryan's large hemp magazine, corner Third and Sutton streets, Thomas J. Pickett's grain warehouse, corner Second and Wall streets, Dr. John Snackleford's two storage warehouses, on Second street, and Joseph Frank's tinware store adjoining, received probably the greatest injury. Every store on Second and Market streets had all or nearly all the glass in their large show-windows broken.

There are probably fifty houses which have not a single pane of glass left unbroken; as many more with not a dozen sound ones; and twenty with every sash broken or thrown out on the floor and wrecked.

The elegant dwelling-house lately occupied by John Armstrong, deceased, and willed to his young son, Frank, was damaged some $500, including the injury to the furniture.

Many houses occupied by others than the owners suffered very greatly by the falling in of the doors, windows, plastering, &c.—doing immense damage to their fine carpets and furniture of all kinds.

The porches, or heavy timbers at the ridge of roofs that support the rafters, were snapped in two, in several instances.

The strong wooden bars that fastened the warehouse doors, in nearly every instance, were snapped in one, two or three pieces.

Sixteen hundred (1,600) lights of glass were broken in the Mayeville Cotton Mills. Several stones pierced the roof and broke the fire-walls in two or three places.

From the best information we can gather, it will require some $25,000 outlay to make immediate and pressing repairs. An immense amount of damage was done that will not be repaired for years. Several houses will hardly justify rebuilding. Many walls are sprung that will be keyed up with an S, or in some way strengthened for pressing purposes. Every hour develops damage in some shape or form not before observed—much of which can never be remedied.

The effect in Aberdeen and East Mayeville was in proportion to that experienced here. The same scenes of terror were witnessed, similar agonizing screams of mothers for their children heard, and piercing cries of children for their parents. Windows were broken, walls sprung, door-bells rung, rocks and gravel buried about, damage everywhere and all sides.

The report of the explosion was heard for many miles in every direction—at Poplar Plains, 22 miles distant, on a steamboat 42 miles up the river, at Hillsboro, O., 40 miles off, &c.

At Orangeburg, 7 miles off, chinaware was shaken off the table. At John S. Wells's, 1 mile this side of Orangeburg, windows were broken. At George L. Forman's, 3 1/2 miles South from this, windows were broken and a boy thrown out of bed. Near Helena, 12 miles distant, Negroes were thrown out of bed. On the farm of Henry Waller, 14 miles over the hill back of the magazine, windows were broken and shingles torn from the roof of his gardener's house. A stone was thrown through the roof of William Hedrick's house, half a mile over the hill. A stable-door was burst in and the stable splintered, at George Cox's, 1 1/2 miles below the magazine.

A gentleman who was up at the time, and gives one of the most practical descriptions of the scene that we have heard, distinctly saw a large three-story warehouse vibrate about a foot, near the roof, during the general quaking produced by the explosion. This quaking must have lasted nearly half a minute.

Tuesday morning, 10 o'clock. We have just returned from a short walk around two or three squares. The clink of the hammer may be heard in every house, and our city is a perfect bee-hive. Citizens have turned carpenters and doers-of-all-work, and are cheerfully trying to rise above their misfortunes and outgrow the immense damage done to all.

It is a curious sight to observe windows filled with boards of all hues and colors, with signs, box-tops, fragments of awnings, new cotton, &c., &c.—to keep out the sun and rain. All the sash and glass in the city was taken up promptly, and the supply is very far short of the demand. Orders have been sent off for large supplies. The best feeling prevails among all classes, those who are least damaged patiently waiting for the most urgent damages to be first repaired. The ladies of the different Churches have turned out to assist in cleaning them up.

Ben Logan—an honest and very industrious Negro man—lost nearly everything, and yet we have not heard a more cheerful voice or seen more willing hands. He had ten hogs in pens about 200 feet from the magazine, four of which were killed, and the balance it was supposed to have been blown up into the air and carried "to the place where all good hogs go." Two of them were found this morning, and seemed to have had their nature changed while absent in parts unknown. When corn was offered them, they did not seem to know what it was or why it was given them.

We regret to observe a general disposition on the part of the citizens to over-estimate the damage done. It is certainly bad enough as it is, without an effort to produce an impression that it is very much greater than is really true. Some of our citizens most experienced in building say the damage cannot exceed $40,000; while others vary from that up to $75,000 and $100,000. The latter figure, we are now satisfied, is too high entirely.

Great efforts are making to discover the perpetrators, but so far without success.

MORE ABOUT THE EXPLOSION.

The powder contained in the exploded magazine—something over $4,000 worth—belonged to M. D. W. Loomis of Cincinnati, and was manufactured by the Hazard Company. Mr. L. offers $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of those who fired the magazine, in addition to the $1,000 previously offered by the city and citizens. As yet all efforts to ascertain the perpetrators of the outrage have failed. Some individuals against whom suspicions were indulged, were proved to have been in no way connected with the horrible affair. Many circumstances are known which may aid greatly in the detection of the guilty persons.

An officer of the United States Army, visiting in our neighborhood, says this is doubtless the heaviest discharge of gunpowder that has ever taken place upon this continent. No similar disaster is remembered, in the world's history, where so little injury to life resulted amidst such immense and general danger.

Nearly every door in the city, and in Aberdeen and East Mayeville that fronted towards the magazine, was burst open—the locks breaking, or the hinges and screws giving way—and in many cases large and tolerably strong doors of stores and dwellings were shivered and splintered to pieces. Many doors were forced off and blown entirely across the roads with considerable violence.

We have heard of only three persons who were upon the streets at the instant of the

The gage marks 8.4 and falling.

The Henry M. Stanley passed down last night on her regular trip.

Much of the work on Lock No. 37, which is to be built at Callom's Riffe, will be built of concrete.

On top of the rises of last week will come more from the same territory, as the weather reports of the Government say that good rains have fallen at the headwaters of the New river in the Alleghany Mountains.

In an accident the other day on the steamer Ed Roberts, both cylinders blew out on one engine when the boat was four miles from Cincinnati. She was brought up light on the power of the other engine. Her tow was turned over to the Coal City, which went to Louisville. This is the first accident reported from any of the boats sent out recently in the fleet of nineteen.

Latest News

Cornelius F. Shea was re-elected President of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters by the Convention in Philadelphia, defeating Daniel Furman of Chicago by a vote of 129 to 121.

With Saturday's proceedings, the prospect of a successful issue of the peace conference was considerably brightened. The discussion of the terms submitted by the Japanese is in progress, but this has been accomplished by postponing the consideration of the two main issues—the payment of indemnity and the cessation of the island of Sakhalin. On the surface, both sides are still uncompromising upon these propositions. After four hours of debate Saturday on one of the minor demands of Japan, no conclusion was reached. Mr. Witte is manifesting some irritation at the extreme secrecy which is being preserved by the Japanese envoys.

Despite the great increase in new cases of yellow fever—105 new cases and 9 deaths, making 913 cases and 142 deaths to date,—the health authorities at New Orleans profess to be satisfied with the situation. It is explained that many of the reported cases are merely suspicious, and frequently turn out to be attacks of malarial fever. The New Orleans public has been prepared to expect an increase in new cases reported for some days to come, and hence is not rendered disquiet by the large number reported. The poorer classes of the city, who have been more or less distrustful of the health authorities, are becoming tractable, and now assist instead of obstructing the work of sanitation.

Mr. Charles T. Huff has accepted a position with the Garnett Marble Co. of this city and will represent the firm on the road.

HIGHEST PRAISE

Some Maysville Citizens Grow Enthusiastic on the Subject.

The praise of the public is merit's just reward. Nothing in modern times has received the praise accorded "The Little Conqueror."

Of some kinds of praise we are skeptical. We doubt the praise of strangers. The highest praise for Maysville public is a hearty expression from Maysville people. Doan's Kidney Pills are endorsed in Maysville.

No better proof of merit can be had. Here's a case of it. "We have plenty more like it."

James D. Tolle, clerk at Wood & Bros. meat market, and living at 117 Short St., Maysville, Ky., says:

"I was troubled a great deal for some time with constant heavy pain in the small of my back and over the kidneys. At times it was so bad that I could not stoop to sit down or get up without much difficulty. The action of the kidneys was noticeably weakened and passages of the secretions were too frequent, and there was a scalding burning sensation at times. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills I began using them and finding great benefit, continued the treatment until I had taken one or two boxes more and was thoroughly cured of all my troubles. I have never had the least bit of suffering from my back or kidneys since. I give all the credit to Doan's Kidney Pills and feel justified in strongly recommending them to others."

Plenty more proof like this from Maysville people. Call at J. James Wood & Son's Drug-store and ask what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.
